diving

Around all of the islands of Tahiti, dramatic views continue below the water. Divers and snorkelers are amazed by the density of large marine life.

Highlights include fantastic visibility; steep oceanic drop offs; sunken vessels; prolific marine life and walls of bright coral offering a range of sites perfect for both beginners and advanced divers.

Commandant Cousteau rated Rangiroa (the second largest lagoon in the world) as the most beautiful and richest lagoon in the world.

Deep-sea fishing is a very popular recreational activity for visitors and an abundant selection of game fish can be found in the waters of Tahiti & Her Islands, including marlin, yellow fin tuna, sailfish, swordfish, mahi-mahi, barracuda and other pelagic fish.

We can tailor a fishing trip for you, fantastic fishing can be had just off the island of Tahiti.

surfing

An ancient Polynesian sport, Tahiti is one of the most popular spots for international surf competitions.

Most breaks are over coral and surf access is either with a long paddle or by boat - there are a couple of close beach breaks on the main island & the pass at Avatoru in Rangiroa is easily accessed.

We recommend the main island of Tahiti or Moorea, or head out to the atoll of Rangiroa. Tahiti is a year round surf destination with both North & South swells hitting all main islands.

golfing

There are two international golf courses in Tahiti and her islands.

Located on the island of Tahiti is the Olivier Breaud International Golf Course and on the island of Moorea, is the Moorea Green Pearl Golf Course, a Jack Nicklaus design, which will please professional golfers and amateurs alike, due to its numerous bunkers, stretches of water and a driving range over the lake.

D'Atimaono is host each year to the 'Tahiti Open International' in July and is now part of the Australian PGA circuit.

adventure cruise Tahiti, Tuamotu atolls, Marquesas Islands & Bora Bora

The Aranui 5 is a working freighter that boasts 103 cabins and dormitory style berths, accommodating up to 260 guests. There are 17 departures per year for this 14 day adventure cruise and they are very popular, so it pays to book early.

You'll board the Aranui in Tahiti and sail almost 1287km to the most spectacular and remote islands in French Polynesia. The first stop on this 14 day voyage starts with the Tuamotu atolls, where you'll see pearl farmers harvest rare black pearls from giant oysters.

The Marquesas six inhabited islands are so remote that the Aranui is their lifeline to the outside world, bringing supplies and picking up copra, dried coconut and noni fruit.

They make 14 stops, so they have plenty of time to explore. Little has changed in these untouched islands, which have few roads or cars. Visitors are very rare and very welcome. And new to the itinerary is a stop on the way home in Bora Bora, the Pearl of the Pacific.
